

PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

dent Roosevelt and party then visited the interior of the tomb. The invited guests and the general public did likewise.

Thousands passed through the tomb. The tomb, built at a cost of over $600,000, is the donation of over a million Americans to the memory of William McKinley.

THE PRESIDENT WELCOMED.

In the presence of an immense throng of people at the Pennsylvania station, the train bearing President Roosevelt and his party reached the city at 10:15 o'clock this morning on schedule time. Upon leaving the train, the Reception Committee entered the carriage and accompanied the President to the Central High School.

The streets leading from the Pennsylvania station were lined by thousands of spectators. At the railway station the crowd was so dense that the President had some difficulty in entering the carriage, but there was no material delay, owing to the strict guard maintained by the military.

The streets were roped off and the crowd was forced to remain upon the sidewalks. Soldiers, one stationed every five feet, stood at attention. The carriage was kept absolutely clear for the President and his party.

All along the line of march to the Central High School building a distance of about a half mile, the President was greeted by cheers and waving of handkerchiefs and hats. He arose repeatedly, and when near the school house he stood all the time, bowing and raising his hat in acknowledgment of the greetings. As he neared the school building, the line of children grouped and dressed to represent the national flag, arose in a body and sang "America." The Presidential party and the contingent of children in front of the children. Upon the return the President's carriage stopped a moment while President Roosevelt saluted the children. They returned the salute with cheers.

Contrary to expectations the President did not stop to speak, but was driven directly to the reviewing stand, where the parade of the Central High School began at 10:30 a.m. and occupied about one hour and a half in passing.

RAILROAD RECORD.

MOFFETT ON STAND TODAY.

Sensational Evidence to Be Given, Says Counsel.

Oil Magnate Must Substantiate His Charges.

Many Exposures Promised by "Octopus" Advertiser.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Standard Oil Company will offer evidence to substantiate its statement that all manufacturing companies and railroads in the country have violated the Interstate Commerce laws by accepting and granting secret shipping rates.

President James A. Moffett of the Indiana corporation will appear before the special grand jury tomorrow in answer to the subpoenas issued by Judge E. M. Lusk, and will give evidence which it is believed may start wholesale prosecutions by the government against some of the largest and most powerful corporations of the country.

This announcement was made today by Morris Rosenthal, special counsel for the oil monopoly, shortly after the arrival of Moffett, in Chicago.

It dispelled all doubts as to the position to be taken by the oil president, and promises sensational developments in the grand jury probing. The government will insist upon specific information from the witness and will at once take action upon any definite testimony given by Moffett.

Moffett will be placed upon the grand jury and will be asked to give every particle of evidence which caused him to make the charge that "if the Standard Oil Company is guilty in this case as is practically every other shipping company in this great manufacturing territory."

ALTON CHANGE NEAR.

Road Will Today Pass Into Hands of the Shonts-Morton-Hawley Interests.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Shonts-Morton-Hawley interests will assume control of the Chicago and Alton Railroad at the annual meeting tomorrow of stockholders, but it is understood the reorganization of the company and the merger of the Alton, Chicago and North Western roads will be deferred for a time.

The Alton directors, whose terms expire tomorrow by limitation, are Edward H. Harriman, James Stillman and Robert Mather. Mr. Mather, who has been one of the representatives of Rock Island interests, will retire from the board and he will be succeeded by Edwin Hawley of T. F. Shonts, or somebody named by them. Mr. Harriman and Mr. Stillman undoubtedly will be re-elected, as they and their associates still hold $1,500,000 of Alton stock, or nearly one-third of the total capital.

SHIPS LOAD UNLOADED.

Vessels at New Orleans Use Their Own Crews, and Strikers Act in Ugly, Anarchistic Mood.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The branch of negotiations between the cotton shippers and the shipping exchanges has practically resulted in a general obstruction of the port of New Orleans. All ships loading cotton, in whole or in part, are loaded with their own crews alone. The crewmen refused to store the cargo, and longshoremen are not working the vessels forsaken by the crewmen.

Four ships loading cotton are expected to arrive tomorrow, the union men refusing to do any of their work. The ships are the Eugenia, of the Austro-American Line; the Oxonian, the Jamaican and the Cuban of the Leyland Line. The striking crew number as follows: Eugenia, 77 men; Jamaican, 48 men; Oxonian, 32 men; Cuban, 30 men.

Three sailors were assaulted and beaten yesterday, presumably by longshoremen. One of the sailors was from the Oxonian and two from the Cuban.

Additional police have been concentrated about the water front, but no sign of disorder appeared during the morning.

Manager M. J. Sanders of the Leyland Line denounces the stand of the unions as sheer anarchy. The teamsters today refused to haul cotton to ships being loaded by their crews.

BABY HAS SWEET TOOTH.

Servant Girl Keeps Youngster Quiet With Candy While She Steals Jewels.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] While H. Chouteau Dyer's baby sat in the middle of the bed contentedly eating forbidden candy this morning, $600 in mamma's jewels vanished before his innocent eyes.

When Mrs. Dyer came from breakfast she was greeted by her husband with smeared face, waving a candy stick in high glee. A house girl had bought candy for the baby to keep it from crying while she stole.

A pair of piers lay on a writing desk and the secret compartment where the gems reposed was broken open.

"Clara," the up-stairs girl, vanished from Mrs. Dyer's residence, No. 23 Lenox Place, Monday morning, a few minutes later. Mrs. Dyer discovered that jewelry valued at about $1,000 was missing from a compartment in her writing desk.

"Clara" had only applied for service last Thursday, referring to well-known families who happened to be out of the city.

Her description fits that of a house girl who robbed three other exclusive homes. She is young and pretty. Mrs. Dyer does not know her last name.

WILL TRY FOR BAY RECORDS.

Member of Well-Known Family Will Attempt to Swim From Vallejo to San Francisco.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Arthur Cavill, a member of the famous Cavill family, will make a series of attempts in an effort to establish swimming records for the San Francisco Bay.

He will start Thursday by swimming across the Golden Gate. Later on, Cavill will attempt to swim from Vallejo to San Francisco. He will also try to swim from Oakland to North Beach, San Francisco.

Arthur Cavill is a brother of Percy and "Sid" Cavill, both of whom were connected with the Olympic Club. He begins to look as though one could get any franchise here which Rudolph Spreckels opposes.

MILLIONS DIVIDED.

Miss Anna T. Jeanes's Will, Leaving Large Bequests to Various Institutions, Admitted to Probate.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The will of Miss Anna T. Jeanes, who died recently at the Friends' Home in this city, which she established, and who, a short time ago, gave $100,000 to be used for the betterment of the colored people of the South, was admitted to probate today.

FAMOUS WHIP ACCEPTS.

Aurel Batonyi, Just Divorced, Agrees to Act as Judge at Big Equine Event in Seattle.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
SEATTLE, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Aurel Batonyi, recently divorced from Mrs. Fannie Burke Roche, daughter of the noted horseman, Frank Burke, will be judge of the Seattle horse show. He telegraphed an acceptance of the offer this morning, and the famous whip who has officiated at the world's horse shows will add all of the eclat to the Seattle show that the former husband of a New York society woman can give.

Batonyi was a riding academy instructor when he met Mrs. Burke Roche. Batonyi is said to have been a Hungarian Count, but he dropped his title when he came to this country.

FAST TRAIN LEAVES TRACK.

St. Louis and San Francisco Flyer Wrecked, and Two of Crew Meets With Death.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.)
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—The fast train on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, known as the "Meteor," due in St. Louis at 11:30 o'clock a.m., was derailed and wrecked near Dixon Hill, 12 miles southwest of St. Louis, at 7 o'clock this morning, and, according to official advices received at the general offices of the railway company, two of the crew were killed, one seriously injured, and the passengers badly bruised, but none killed. The dead: ENGINEER CHAMBERS, Springfield, Mo. MAIL CLERK FRANK E. CRISSEY of St. Louis.

The injured: Fireman Stokell, Springfield, Mo. The engine and forward portion overturned. The cars took fire and were consumed. A special train bearing six physicians, nurses and fire-fighting apparatus was sent from St. Louis, twenty-five miles from the scene. Dixon Hill is a steep grade, sixteen miles in length. The engine jumped the track while speeding down this grade.

SOMETHING DOING.

M'CAREY WIRES FOR EASTERNER.

McFarland and Memic May Be Matched.

Burns Waiting for an Offer to Fight Johnson.

Joe Gans Goes East, Leaving Lightweight Title.

Manager McCarrey is after Packy McFarland and Jimmy Burns to fight for the lightweight title laid down by Joe Gans, and last night telegraphed the clever easterner, offering to put him on for a percentage of the gate receipts.

McFarland is the only man in the lightweight division who has any claim to the title, if Gans has laid it down permanently in favor of Jimmy Burns, and these two boys would make the best match in the lightweight division.

Burns has the best claim to the title, for Gans says he gave him the hardest fight of any man since the lightweight title. That Gans has retired for good seems to be the case, for he gave all his training paraphernalia, valued at between $200 and $300, to Trainer Keefe, before leaving yesterday for Baltimore.

According to statements made by Keefe, Burns might have won the battle had it gone ten or fifteen rounds farther, for Gans was weakening fast, not from the blows he received on vital spots, but from blocking Burns' attack with his elbows and arms. Keefe says that Gans could hardly raise his arms after the battle, and next morning they were black and blue. Had Joe not played the safe game and waited to earn a decision there is no telling what might have happened.

Only a very few of the sports at the ringside saw a little left chop blow delivered by Burns which landed on Gans' chin and made him wobble at the knees, when the fight was about a third over. Burns said he did not know the damage he had done, but about a dozen persons took note of the effect and saw Gans stagger into the clinch. Burns was a blow delivered by the twist of his wrist backed up by a slight movement of the forearm, which does great execution, and Jimmy is proud of it, as very few other pugilists have it.

BURNS AFTER PURSE.

Tommy Burns has his return trip ticket extended five days yesterday, in the hope that McCarrey or San Francisco promoter would offer a large purse for a fight with Jack Johnson. Burns made the proposition to McCarrey yesterday that if the latter would guarantee him the sale of 100 seats at $25 each and split the rest of the house on equitable terms he would sign articles at once, and no doubt Johnson is ready to sign at any old time.

McCarrey will not offer a large purse and refused to take the fight to a proposition of that character. Burns offered to fight for $20,000, in preference to the $25,000 offered by Coffroth at San Francisco, and when McCarrey refused this he made the proposal of a guaranteed sale of seats. McCarrey may present a subscription paper for the sale of these seats to feel the fans out.

If no arrangements for a large purse can be made here, Burns says he will go to England and fight Gunner Moir. Although he considers the Englishman easy picking, he prefers to fight for the large purse with Johnson, for he believes he can make the negro jump out of the ring.

Curious as it may seem, the great attraction of the fight here would be the desire of hundreds of persons to see Burns soundly thrashed. This tendency of a fight fan is almost in many cases. The sports wanted to see Danny Webster whipped, the other night. Dalton is in the list, and Abe Attell is another.

ATTELL AFTER BURNS.

Abe Attell wants to fight Jimmy Burns, and McCarrey sent a wire East last night to get a line on such a match. Attell has boxed with Burns and found he could tap the sturdy lightweight. As he has beaten Nelson, Kid Herman, and a host of other lightweights for a decision, he believes he can outpoint Burns over a long route. Attell wanted to take on Gans at one time, but those who saw the fight last week believe he would be beaten by the younger one-sided. These same persons believe that Burns would be able to outpoint the little featherweight champion, for Jimmy is a fair boxer, and Attell could not hurt him if Gans could not, and certainly Abe has not the reach and the strength of the negro fighter.

Gans is on his way East, and his trainer, Keefe, went to San Francisco last night. He expects to return in three weeks, and set up training quarters at Arcadia.

SWEDS SEND CHALLENGE.

New York Yacht Club Exponent, and Proposes to Honor the Scandinavians' Def.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Local yachtsmen were much interested today in the news that Sweden may make a bid for America's cup. They declared it welcome news from a most unexpected quarter.

On Sept. 24, Secretary Cornack of the New York Yacht Club received a cablegram from the Swedish Yacht Club of Stockholm and he immediately communicated with Commodore Vanderbilt. He then mailed a copy of resolutions sent to Sir Thomas Lipton in reply to his recent challenge, also a copy of the deed of gift, under the provisions of which the races are held.

Mr. Cornack was greatly interested, today, in the news that a letter expressing a desire to challenge had been mailed by the Swedish Club. It seemed to indicate that the reply to Lipton had been secured elsewhere, probably from European newspapers, and that the sporting subjects of King Oscar are to lose no time in arranging a race if possible.

"This looks business-like," said Mr. Cornack. "If the Swedes receive the letter I will put life into the fight for possession of the cup. It will, of course, receive prompt and courteous treatment. I will let Commodore Vanderbilt know about it immediately."

The Swedes are a seafaring race, from which many nations draw their best sailors. In fact, the crew of the Reliance, the boat which successfully defended the cup against Shamrock III, was composed of Swedes and Norwegians. If Sweden does challenge it will mean that the New York Yacht Club will have to recruit its sailors once more from Denmark, Germany, and many of the men on former defenders have sailed.

The Swedish Yacht Club is one of the largest in the world, having 2000 members and about 600 boats, of which only ten are steam yachts. The honorary president of the club is King Oscar, and among the members are Prince William, who recently visited the United States; Crown Prince Gustav, and Admiral Prince Oscar Bernadotte.

The best racing of the club is in the classes for sloops of about sixty feet. Racing machines, so-called, are not unknown in Sweden. After the American schooner-yacht America won the cup which bears her name, in 1851, and had been owned by Lord John de Blaquiere, an officer in the British-Indian army, the first match she sailed was one for $500 with the Swedish schooner-yacht Sverige, in October, 1852. The course was twenty miles to leeward and return, off the Isle of Wight. The American won several races.

STRENGTHEN SCUM.

CASTAWAYS HOT FOR BIG GAME.

INDOOR PRACTICE BY BRITISH RUGBY PLAYERS HERE.

Stanford Team Will Meet Experts When They Play Here Saturday. Polytechnic Boys Offer to Help Out. University Team Has Five New Men in Its Line Up.

Now that the match with Stanford is arranged definitely and they have had their first practice match, the Castaways are training enthusiastically for the game next Saturday. The game with Polytechnic showed that their back line is very strong, but the scrum is correspondingly weak. The High School lads were able to heel the ball out of the scrum every time and rushed the Castaways all over the field when their line was threatened.

In order to strengthen the forwards new material will be added for the first match. Frank Rickenhauer, captain of Polytechnic, who played a remarkably strong and clever game last Saturday, has been asked to play, and his brother, Charlie, who is not out for football on account of study, has consented to play this time. The two brothers make a tower of strength in the scrum. They are both very powerful lads, and fast on their feet. When they break away dribbling the ball, it is hard to stop them, and they have learned the art of not kicking the ball too hard when rushing it down the field. Several of the Castaways were able to get away from business early yesterday afternoon, and they were out for a practice with the Polytechnic boys. After the practice game more players turned up, and, as it was growing too dark for practice with the ball, they went for a two-mile run at a smart clip.

The Polytechnic authorities have courteously placed the gymnasium at the disposal of the local team for three nights this week, and Capt. Higgins will put the forwards through scrum practice and show the backs some tricks of passing and dodging. All Castaways are to meet at Polytechnic at 8 o'clock tonight for the first indoor work.

The general sentiment among the local players of Rugby is that Stanford has no easy task before them. The university has lost five of the eight backs from last year, and the local back field is very strong. If the Castaway forwards can get in shape to hold the northern scrum and heel the ball out, it is practically certain that they will be able to score.

The Fiesta Park field is in good condition, considering the hardness of the ground. Plenty of sawdust has been spread over the field, and the players can fall almost as softly as on turf.

SEATTLE IS AFTER GAME.

Northern Champions Want to Come Here to Play the High School Football Team.

Los Angeles High School's football manager, Jack Howard, is in receipt of a letter from Seattle High School, asking for a game with the local team on Thanksgiving Day. The northern team wishes its expenses paid in full, and offers, in return, to allow the High boys all the gate receipts.

Last year Seattle invited a Chicago high school team to their grounds, and at this game the gate receipts were $2000. The northern manager hinted that there was no reason why the receipts of a game in this city should not be as large.

Howard does not favor playing in Los Angeles, and has written for a match at Seattle.

McGrath Beats Rose.

Matt McGrath of the N.Y.A.C. beat Ralph Rose in both events in which the two competed, Saturday, in the playgrounds meet at Kansas City. The first was throwing the 56-pound weight, a distance of 35 feet, and the second was throwing the 15-pound hammer, in which McGrath broke the world's record by 3 inches, at 154 ft. 3 in.

First Football Death.

HANOVER (N. H.) Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Leonard J. Clarkson, manager of the Norwich University football team, died at the Mary Hitchcock Hospital here, today, as the result of an injury received in the football game between Norwich and Dartmouth, Saturday. Clarkson sustained internal injuries in organs weakened by an attack of appendicitis experienced during the summer. His home was in Portland, Ct.

Levy Football Dues.

The Los Angeles High School board of directors have decided to enforce the athletic dues again this year. Principal Housh remitted these dues last year, but the increase in athletic expenses made it necessary for the board to take this step. The amount is 25 cents for each pupil, and the amount raised in this way will cover the expenses of the football team.

CRUISERS SOON START WEST.

Armored "Pathfinders" of Battleship Fleet Expected to Depart for Pacific Coast This Week.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The armored cruisers Washington and Tennessee, which have recently been allotted to the "pathfinders" of the battleship fleet, are expected to start on their voyage to the Pacific this week.

The Washington, which is now at the navy yard here, will go tomorrow to Hampton Roads, where she will be joined by the Tennessee from Boston. The cruisers will go over the identical route to be taken by the battleships under Admiral Evans, which will sail later, and the most complete log ever kept on board a ship will form a feature of the cruises.

At every port of call Admiral Sigsbee, who will command the cruiser squadron, will mail two copies. One will go to the Bureau of Navigation in Washington, and the other to Admiral Evans, to guide him when he sails, just before Christmas.

HORSE RETURNS RIDERLESS.

George Wingfield, Rich Nevada, Hears of Brother's Mysterious Disappearance, and Speeds North.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

RENO, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] George Wingfield, a wealthy promoter of Nevada mines, left here late last night for his old home in Oregon, upon receipt of a telegram announcing the possible death of his brother Maurice under mysterious circumstances.

According to the dispatch, the young man left home in the morning to look for some lost stock. Nothing was thought of his failure to return that evening, but after a second day of waiting his horse came home, wet and muddy, and with an empty saddle.

Diligent search of the ranges about the old home have failed to reveal any trace of the young man, and the fear of his death by drowning was expressed in the telegram.

George Wingfield arrived here yesterday from Wonder and Fairview, where he has been sick in bed for several days. He had a fast auto in waiting in Reno and intends to cover the 300 miles in a machine in preference to a roundabout railroad journey.

INFRINGEMENT SUITS.

Five Walnut Growers' Associations and Many Stockholders Are Defendants—Damages Asked.

Five suits, with damages aggregating nearly $75,000, were filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday by the Anderson-Bargrower Manufacturing Company of San Jose against a number of walnut-growing associations for the alleged infringement of a patent.

It is alleged that the plaintiff secured an exclusive right to use the Farrell process for bleaching walnuts and that the defendants have used the process without paying royalties. The defendants are: Fullerton Walnut-Growers' Association, $22,000 damages; Saticoy Walnut-Growers' Association, $22,000; Decatur Walnut-Growers' Association, $22,000; Oxnard Walnut-Growers' Association, $22,000; and the Santa Paula Walnut Association, $22,000. More than 200 stockholders are named as co-defendants.

WILL SHIP BODY HERE.

A Milwaukee dispatch says that the body of Capt. E. E. Overton, U. S. A., retired, who died suddenly there Sunday night, will be shipped to Los Angeles. The coroner's inquest was merely a formal matter, at which was presented the testimony of physicians that death was due to normal causes.

Shelah.

THE SUDDEN REFORMATION OF MR. CLANCARTY.

SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.

At every charge of the rain against the pane, Mrs. Clancarty looked up from her embroidery frame and sighed. The little house was very quiet and warm. A fragrance of roasting fowl and baking cake mixed delicately with the warmth, and the chink of china came from the dining-room below.

She looked at the clock. The minute-hand was stealing to seven, and still Clancarty had not come.

It was two years since the family had left Dublin. Mrs. Clancarty did not like New York. The rush and tension of life, no doubt, meant increasing national greatness, but it was too heady for the merciful Irish temperament. The fever for money was in the air. Daniel and Thomas, both in the early twenties, had a fervor, a restlessness, and a growing American accent talked of money constantly.

As for Clancarty, the race for fortune was unmade. He anticipated riches, and spent recklessly what he could not afford. In Dublin he had been a university tutor, a devout attendant at the services of the church of England, a temperate man, fond of books, addicted to the purchase of fine editions and antique. Ah, those were peaceful days in Dublin. Things were different now. Instead of taking up a professorship in New York he had gone into business. He spent little time at home. He attended the races. He speculated in Wall street.

As for drink, those who loved him best had to admit that frequently Clancarty's blue eyes were unnaturally bright and accompanied by an inclination to demonstrate in public his affection for the person who happened to be with him.

"No sign of himself yet, and we from business this hour," Tom exclaimed, impatiently. "Well, let's get down to dinner. There's no use waiting any longer, and I'm as hungry as a hutter."

"Yes," said Dan, who had serious blue eyes, "he lets drink alone today."

"Yes," said Mrs. Clancarty, adding in quick loyalty, "a bit affects him. It's a pity, so it is. He's a fine man."

As they seated themselves at the dinner table the bell on the street door rang.

"Himself!" ran around the table in a whisper.

"No," he has a key.

"Ah!" Mrs. Clancarty cried, starting up. "My mind is wool gathering. Why, I, dear, looked poor Owen in for a bit of dinner with us, and look at me forgetting all about it."

Owen Fitzgerald was well known in the Clancarty house. He came and went as he pleased, at any hour, never questioned, always welcomed. They all liked him heartily. He was lovable, and his handsomeness and attractiveness to their romantic imagination, because he was the hero of a sad, passionate story.

His story was this: He had been a prosperous tenant farmer in Westmeath, and was pledged to marry Shelah Moynan, who was governess at the hall to the Earl of Cromwell's children. Alas! that the hall was a full eighteen miles from Owen's farm! Alas! that Sir Larry Roscommon should have found his niece's Irish estate so attractive after Shelah's arrival! It was the story of Hetty in "Adam Bede" over again—the accomplished scoundrel of the aristocracy who goes scotchless, the weakness and faith of a simple girl of lowlier birth.

She had fled, disgraced, to America. Sir Larry found Egypt pleasant there. So the story ended, as many another had done. Owen sold his farm, and a little more than year ago had come to America. Where Shelah was, was the only land for him.

All the Clancartys knew Owen's story in detail. His estate had been still futile. Whenever he came they looked at him expectantly, and the said, "Well, Owen?" meant "Have you found her, poor fellow?"

Before the dinner had progressed very far they heard the key vibrating with unnecessary loudness in the lock, the door was swung back and then shut with a bang. A telegraphic anxiety ran from eye to eye around the table. There was not a sound in the dining-room until Clancarty entered, and then he did not talk.

"The festive board looks very inviting, and glad I am to see Owen among us," he said, and then he turned and passed to Mrs. Clancarty, who dolefully lifted her cheek. "You are looking a little less gloomy than usual, Margaret, thank God for that," said Clancarty, with a light kiss. And over her head he smiled condescendingly at his son.

The dinner went on easily. Dan found the ring in the pocket of his coat, and potatoes and haricots mashed together—and was toasted as the next bridegroom. But scarcely had the champagne run around the table, than each glanced at Owen's thoughtful face and then at each other.

"Owen, what didn't manage to get to you?" said Mrs. Clancarty, who said, "for it would have given him a good, poor lad."

"Well, I've enjoyed your hospitality, Mrs. Clancarty," Clancarty said, when the dinner was finally over, bowing to the lady with playful mock-dignity. "I trust that the rest of this night will be as interesting for all of us as it will be for me."

A look of wild anxiety passed over the faces of the family as the head of it walked to the sofa where he had placed his hat and overcoat. He paused there, and drawing out a pig-skin wallet began leisurely counting the fat, thick sheaf of bills it contained.

"It's not going out again, y'are?" Mrs. Clancarty faltered, her eyes on the money and the memory of the many bills due burning darkly before her.

"There's for you," he laughed, spinning the money to him and dropping her shoulder.

"Now—whisper—because you're such a dotey you'll have a kiss," his lips touched her cheek. "Get your things on, my dear. But don't take too long, for I ordered a cab, and it must be at the door."

Mrs. Clancarty went to her room, dazed. It was the most confusing moment of her life. She was going to do what she thought wrong because she felt it was wise to do it. It was politic to let Clancarty fancy that his eloquence had converted her to his way of thinking. In reality she resented everything he had said, and with every instinct secretly in revolt was really going as an anxious watch dog over the wallet.

"Where are you taking me?" was her first question after they had entered the cab.

"Oh, to a quiet but entertaining little spectacle," said Clancarty. "It's called 'The Black Cross.' He gave a hawk glance to see if the name was known to her, but her face remained pale and sad.

"I'm afraid, I'm afraid," she kept whispering as Clancarty led her with many stumbles through the darkness to a niche curtained off from the throng. This was a stage box. To Mrs. Clancarty it seemed a room next to hell, for—oh, glory be!

She sat back weakly after untying her bonnet strings and closed her eyes for a few moments. A contrite, frightened prayer surged up from her disturbed soul. It seemed as if this brought peace and comfort, for the devil's dance music ceased, and a tremulous, dreamy strain of almost painful sweetness flooded the rapid quiet.

Her Celtic prudery was ablaze and filled her with strength. She tied her bonnet strings and drew her dolman over her shoulders.

"What are you doing?" Clancarty asked.

"I'm getting out of this."

"Don't be foolish, woman."

"Are you coming?" she asked in a thin voice through set lips.

She rose with such determination, with such a rustling, with such angry eyes and quick breath, he saw he must obey, and so followed her from the place. In the wide, wet marble foyer they faced each other.

To her surprise he looked at her quietly, laid powerful hands on her shoulders and forced her to a seat on the stairs.

"Now, listen to me, and listen well," he bent over her, his finger pointed at her rebellious face. "Strange as it may seem to you, Margaret, among that crowd of poor figures using their beauty and grace for a pitiful wage there can be found virtue, heroism and truth. I've learned much about those poor creatures since yesterday, for I talked to one of them."

"Trust you for that," she could not help interjecting scornfully.

Clancarty overlooked this grandly, and even along his tone.

"There are mothers among those dancers," he declared, "supporting small children, and daughters keeping a roof over the heads of old parents. All are not so, I admit. There's shadow as well as light there, as there is everywhere in life."

"But to go back to the girl I was speaking of. In there she's dressed as a queen of the fairies—with little enough on. God knows—and in the daytime she makes neckties in her poor room. Once, poor girl, she made a mistake, and by it lost, as she thought, friends, lover and home. But she's good and true in the midst of struggles that women like you know nothing about. Don't you want to know her name?"

"Her name's nothing to me—this stranger. I'll never know her like!"

"That's very kind of you, Margaret," he said, with scorn. "But it's a woman's hand in here she wants—for that poor queen of the fairies is Shelah Moynan."

The name moved on her lips silently. "In there?"

"Aye, in there, dancing and her heart weeping all the time. She lives in a small, cold little room, and a pretty face is pinched and old before her time, but she has the same big blue eyes, the same sweet voice, the same soul as white as the foam in Maytime—let those judges her who dare."

He waited. "Do you? Will you speak to her kindly now, and ask her to come with us to Owen?"

She was silent, her finger resting against her lip, not looking at him.

"I will, Ralph," she said without waiting, after a pause. "For Owen's sake I'll speak to her."

"For her own," said Clancarty, sternly.

"I'll try, I'll do my best," she said, faintly and reluctantly.

"Then come with me."

Mrs. Clancarty followed with dignity.

What happened when her eyes rested on the girl she had seen grow from babyhood, whose fingers had often clung to hers as she struggled with her first steps, was so different from her decision that she never in her after life could Mrs. Clancarty be quite sure what she would do under given circumstances. She found herself standing in a cold, narrow passageway, and will out a single question folding tightly to her heart a poor, spangled fairy queen with a yard of gauze for a skirt, whose faint check was pressed with passionate grief against her own, which streamed with tears.

TO CATARRH SUFFERERS

Good Advice and Liberal Offer From a Well Known Firm.

We advise all who suffer from any of the symptoms of catarrh, such as offensive breath, dryness of the nose, pain across the eyes, stoppage of the nose, discharges and droppings in the throat, coughing spasms and general weakness and debility, to use Hyomei. We go so far as to offer to refund the money to any user of Hyomei who is not perfectly satisfied with the results.

Quick relief follows the use of the Hyomei treatment; the stoppage of the nose is removed, the droppings cease, the breath becomes pure and sweet, and the catarrhal germs are destroyed and their growth prevented. Hyomei is the surest, simplest, quickest, easiest and cheapest way to cure catarrh. It does not drag and urage the stomach; it goes right to the seat of the trouble, destroying the catarrhal germs and healing and vitalizing the tissues.

All you have to do is to inhale a little occasionally in the air you breathe, using one pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, when the symptoms of catarrh will quickly disappear. Try it, you will be surprised and pleased at the results.

We positively guarantee Hyomei, for should you buy a complete outfit, price $1.00, and be dissatisfied with results, your money will be refunded. Hyomei is sold by druggists everywhere. Write for literature. Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

THOUSANDS DIE OF CHOLERA.

Source, Which Appeared in Russia in August, Is Spreading at Alarm.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.) ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 30.—The epidemic of cholera, which broke out early in August, is spreading rapidly, and already twelve provinces are affected.

The disease is reported mostly along the Volga. The deaths already reach into the thousands, and it has been found impossible to check the scourge. Every day it is appearing in new provinces.

TOTEMITES IN TROUBLE.

Split Occurs in Seattle Shipwrights, Carpenters and Joiners' Union, and Officers Resign.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.) SEATTLE (Wash.) Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The shipwrights, carpenters and joiners' union has split, two of the officers resigning and William Gordon, the old treasurer, is charged with the misappropriation of $1,100.

Gordon tried to take the money into a new organization. He refused to give a bond to safeguard the union's finances when he was elected and resigned and attempted to organize a new union when pressed for security.

Secretary J. F. Mitchell left the union with him, and the old organization today asked the courts to restrain the National Bank of Commerce from turning over the money to the insurgents.

LOSES ALL AND ENDS LIFE.

Owner of Prosperous Arizona Ranch Commits Suicide After Gambling Adversely at Prescott.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.) PRESCOTT, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Edward Packard, owner of a prosperous ranch near Jerome and well known throughout the county, committed suicide yesterday morning at 8 o'clock by blowing the top of his head off.

Packard had been in Jerome gambling for the past five days. Having lost all his money, he arose from the card table, walked to a nearby livery stable, where he secured a Winchester and fired a bullet into his brain which tore off his skull.

WILL ABIDE BY DECISION.

Senator Allison Says He is Perfectly Willing to Accept Results of Iowa Election.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.) DUBUQUE (Ia.) Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Senator Allison in response to the statement made by Gov. Cummins regarding the primary law and its bearing on the Senatorial fight, gave out the following statement to the press this afternoon:

"If a majority of the Republicans of Iowa shall express their preference for another, at the election to be held next June, under the provisions of the law, I will in absolute good faith cheerfully accept their decision and withdraw my name from further consideration as a candidate."

"I need not add that under such circumstances I will do whatever I can to loyally carry out the spirit and purpose of the primary law."

"If more than two candidates come before the primaries, I shall feel the same obligation to abide by the decision under the provisions of the law. This view I have uniformly expressed when speaking of the subject."

From the beginning this meeting had brought confusion to Clancarty. He had expected at the most that Mrs. Clancarty would be only gently courteous. But at those last words of hers he choked with tears and slipped from the stage door to the step outside, and there Mrs. Clancarty found him when she came out.

"She's coming with us, Ralph. She says her turn is over. Ah, what a couch the jewel has."

"Margaret," Clancarty's voice was faint.

"Yes, Ralph."

"Margaret, I've not been a good husband. I've been a thorn to you often. But I'll be better after tonight. Aye, I will, Margaret."

"If you can't," she whispered softly, "I will—no, Margaret. If I've ever mocked you or taunted you—an God knows I have—forgive me. Ah, you've a star for a soul, Margaret, and a rose for a heart, and the kiss you gave poor Shelah was straight from heaven."

He moved nearer. "There's no one looking," he whispered. "Kiss me, too."

and Have the Best in the World

Male bird feathers are stronger, larger, have better luster, longer stipes and retain their curl longer than the feathers from female birds. Our plumes are made from male bird feathers, and the skilled operators in our factory on the farm give them the better style and making that at once shows them to be superior to the imported goods.

The New Fall Hats Require Plumes

In choosing you should secure the best. Cawston qualities are the highest standard of feather perfection. We have none of the inferior grades. Our goods are on sale at our store on Third Street and at the farm only. As we produce and manufacture our feathers we are able to price them lower than you can secure good feathers elsewhere.

JEKVILL-HYDE CASE.

Physician and Druggist in New York Town is Arrested on Charge of Burglary.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.) NEW ROCHELLE (N. Y.) Sept. 30.—The excitement under which New Rochelle labored yesterday when Emil Bolla, who posed as a wealthy physician, was arrested on a charge of burglary, was augmented today when developments came thickly.

In the first place Bolla failed to appear in court when his case was called, and the $3000 bail which friends had put up for him last night was forfeited. The next shock came when Mrs. Bolla told the police that, while she believed her husband owned an interest in a drug store in Harlem, his regular occupation was that of a bartender in a saloon in the Bronx.

Tonight came the assertion that Bolla had served a prison term in New Jersey and had been arrested for burglary and other things in New York. This was followed by the report that Mrs. Bolla had attempted suicide. She threw herself in front of a slowly moving trolley car on Madison street last afternoon, but the car was stopped before she was in any particular danger. Later the police stated that she had disappeared from town.

According to the story of Mrs. Bolla, her husband attempted twice to kill himself, after he was released on bail last night, but she prevented him. Soon after, she said, he left the house and disappeared.

Bolla and his wife, who moved here two months ago and bought a house in the exclusive section of town, were received into society and became very popular. Bolla was understood to be a physician and chemist, and proprietor of a drug store in Harlem. Early last Thursday morning the police claim he attempted burglary at Abraham Levinson's hardware store. His counsel, Judge John A. Vaneusen, told the court today that he believed Bolla had killed himself. Mrs. Bolla told the police that she had married Bolla in Vaneusen's office, in 1902. Soon after her husband came to America and two years ago sent for her and she came here and joined him. A general alarm and request to arrest Bolla have been sent out broadcast.

MILITIA CAMP BURNED.

Two National Guards of Oklahoma Badly Hurt in Blaze That Swept Over Prairie.

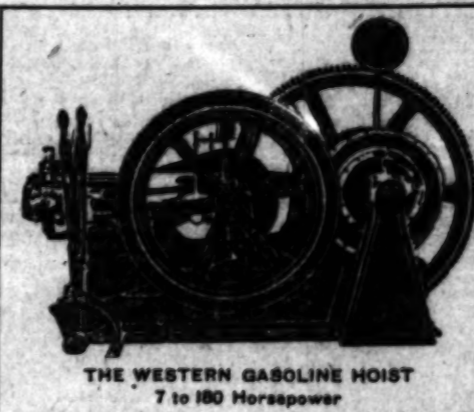

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.) WICHITA (Kan.) Sept. 30.—A special to the 'Eagle from Fort Reno, O. T., says the camp of the Oklahoma National Guards has been destroyed by fire, which endangered the barracks of the government troops.

The loss is estimated at $75,000. The fire originated in the prairie, which is covered with dry grass.

The militiamen turned out with wet blankets and fought the blaze. Two soldiers were seriously hurt, Corporals Maranville and Battline of Eud.

THE CITY IN BRIEF

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Hearing Five Hundred.

The membership of the Chamber of Mines is reported by the secretary as nearing 500. Among the applicants yesterday was Mayor Harper.

Bank's Improvement.
The counter of the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank which is being remodeled, will be ready for use in two weeks.

Health Officer Wants Help.
Dr. O. R. Blufford, county health officer, has asked the supervisors to empower him to employ extra inspectors or fumigators when necessary. The District Attorney will frame a needed amendment to the county health ordinance.

Poundmaster Resigns.
E. W. Martin, poundmaster of the Palmdale district, sent his resignation yesterday to the supervisors. He says the fulfillment of the duties of his office get him into trouble with his neighbors. The resignation was accepted. No successor was named.

Don't City Clothes.
Claremont is now a duly constituted city, the sixth class, having been declared such by resolution of the supervisors yesterday. At the incorporation election on September 21, seventy-three votes were cast for incorporation and forty-nine against it.

County Game Warden W. B. Morgan is attending the annual convention of game wardens of the Western States, now in session at Salt Lake City. He has been in Wyoming as a witness in the prosecution of men arrested in Los Angeles for killing elk in Wyoming.

Gets Larger Quarters.
The Los Angeles County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been crowded for space, owing to its increasing work, and yesterday moved from the O. T. Johnson building to larger quarters in the Byrne building, where it now occupies rooms 422-431.

License Held Up.
The question of issuing a retail liquor license to George F. Miller for 3000 Main street, south of Manchester street, outside the city limits, was before the supervisors yesterday, but action was deferred until the return of Supervisor Wilson, in whose district it is proposed to locate the saloon.

St. Louis Man Dies Here.
Harry S. Tompkins, formerly of St. Louis, a member of the firm of Tompkins-Sutton, died here yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. H. Sutton, in whose care he had been for the past five months. He had many friends in St. Louis. Beside Mrs. Sutton, he leaves a mother and another sister, Miss Kate Tompkins.

Handsome Refitted.
The work of refitting the old State Bank and Trust Company's quarters at Second and Spring streets to accommodate the recently organized Central Trust Company is nearly completed. The old banking room, which was finished in oak twenty years ago now appears to have been refinished in mahogany. The vaults have been repaired and made to look like new ones.

Griffith Park Road.
Park Commissioner William Humphreys, on behalf of the Park Commission, asked the supervisors to have a survey made for a road to connect the end of Griffith Park with Cahuenga street. The commissioners have an offer of land for a road through the Hooker and Pomeroy ranch, and the city and county may cooperate in the construction of the highway. The supervisors ordered the survey.

Coin Passer Arraigned.
Edward Carpenter, arrested at the Glens-Burns hotel, Friday night, for passing spurious coins, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Van Dyke yesterday. He was placed in the custody of the sheriff. In a confession to detectives, the prisoner claimed the coin was made at the Glens-Burns hotel, and that he purchased $5 and $10 gold coins at half price from William Griffith, a brass foundry owner. Griffith officers are now making an investigation.

New Park in Sight.
A large delegation of business men from Highland Park and Garvan urged the supervisors yesterday to donate to the city a three-acre tract between Pasadena and Piedmont avenues, and just below Avenue 61, for park purposes. It is said the Los Angeles Railway Company will donate another strip, adjoining this tract, for park purposes, and that this another handsome park will be located along the route of travel to Pasadena. The District Attorney was directed to take the necessary steps. The county is taking gravel from the tract for road work.

Veterans Exempt.
Several weeks ago the Board of Supervisors passed an ordinance licensing various "occupations" included under the general head of fortune telling. It now appears that a number of veterans of the Civil War are hit by this tax. Yesterday the board adopted an amendment which provides that every honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine of the United States, who is unable to obtain a livelihood by manual labor shall have the right to carry on and practice any art, or business specified in the license ordinance, without the payment of any tax or fee.

Soldiers Needed.
Postmaster Flint received a communication from Postmaster-General Mead yesterday, setting forth the attitude of the department in regard to the enlistment of postal employees in the National Guard. The postmaster-general says that the department encourages enlistment and that it is feasible for postmasters to arrange the work in such a way that leave of absence to perform military duty can be granted without detriment to the postal service. In the cases where the whole force of the National Guard is called out, it is understood that commanding officers will relieve from duty such employees as are absolutely needed in the office.

Liquor Men Active.
Frank Hampton yesterday asked the supervisors for a county restaurant liquor license for "The Summit," on the San Fernando road. Supervisor Patterson asked that the matter be taken under advisement. W. E. Pardee asked for a retail liquor license for the Southern Hotel at Newhall, and this application was advertised, as will that of the Schuetzen Park Association for a restaurant liquor license at Schuetzen Park. A winery license was granted for a location and one-quarter mile southwest of Azusa. David C. Huddleston applied for a restaurant liquor license for the pavilion at Alamitos Bay, and this will be advertised.

OCEAN PARK VOTES "NO" ON DISINCORPORATION.

Fierce But Funny Battle Ends With Defeat for Kinney Faction in Venice.

SING AL AL AL with grief for the Doge of Venice!

The splitfire election to disincorporate Ocean Park took place yesterday. Abbot Kinney, who wanted to disincorporate the town in order to charter the city officials and throw them out of their dignities, was defeated.

The vote was 202 to 176 for disincorporation. He needed 252 to make the necessary two-thirds.

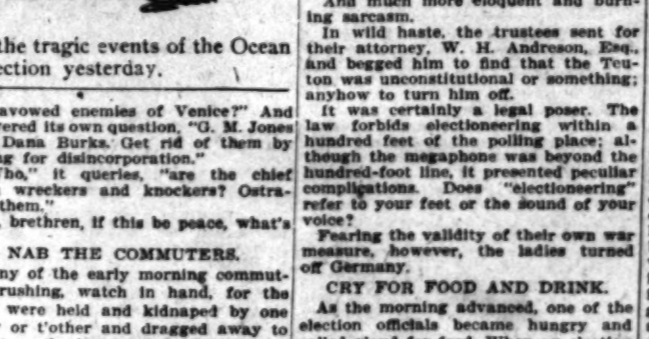

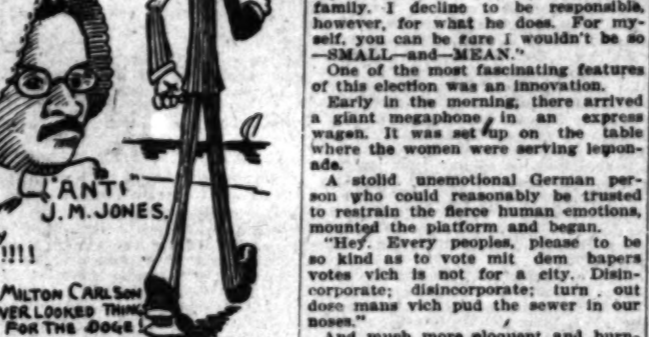

The election will probably be contested by Kinney, whose party challenged sixty votes.

It was a comic opera election in a toy city—even to the chorus of beautiful women who "electioneered" for Kinney and pinned badges on people.

Of course, no one is expected to take very seriously all the frightful details of the internal warfare that accompanied the voting.

As an engine leaves clinkers stalling in its path—so this election. Such threats! "By-r-r-r!"

Damage suits aggregating over one million dollars have actually been arranged to be instituted against Kinney, and Earl Rogers has been retained to press them, not to mention the almost innumerable libel suits and criminal libel charges against other people. To punish Kinney, the trustees whom he tried to oust now declare they will force him to tear down the test city which is his principal source of revenue.

The artist's fond memories of some of the tragic events of the Ocean Park disincorporation election yesterday.

On the other hand, Kinney vows he will close down Venice if the trustees continue to hold office. The perfectly diabolical scandals and charges, the savage ferocity of the growls and scowls, and even the blooded noses seem much like young-lady hysterics, however.

One-half expects to see Dana Burks and Abbot Kinney and their clans fall on one another's necks and weep down each other's collars in mutual contrition and forgiveness.

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?
 It is to be regretted that The Times is not able to explain what the trouble is all about. But nobody knows—least of all the belligerents.

Anyhow, it was very fierce while it lasted. For about two weeks past a number of ordinarily sane and high-priced Los Angeles business men have been letting their serious affairs go hang while they rushed around Venice and "orated" about the burning question and held mass meetings and said mean things about one another.

Each side heard that the other side was getting out a campaign newspaper, and solemn citizens sat up of nights just burning holes through amateur copy paper—preparing annihilating editorials and things.

The fateful dawn came yesterday with a weird and bloody hue over the sobbing sea. With twin foreboding thumps, the two campaign newspapers were delivered at the various front doors.

The Ocean Park Evening Journal had a scare-head line you might read in the dark, a sort of journalistic Paul Revere to warn folks that everything was going to the eternal bow-wow if Kinney prevailed and the town disincorporated.

The Venice Vanguard, however, had a pious line at the top announcing itself as a "Journal of peace, promotion" and some other benevolent and beautiful things. "But," he expostulated pleadingly, "I just saw your husband and he told me to vote, the other way—against disincorporation."

She gave him one deadly look and said crushing, "I regret to say that my husband has the only vote in our family. I decline to be responsible, however, for what he does. For myself, you can be sure I wouldn't be so—SMALL—AND—MEAN."

One of the most fascinating features of this election was its innovation: a hundred feet of the polling place, where the women were serving lemonade.

A stolid, unemotional German person who could reasonably be trusted to restrain the fierce human emotions, mounted the platform and began.

"Hey, Every people, please to be so kind as to vote mit dem bapen votes vich nicht for a city. Disincorporate disincorporate; turn out dose main vich pud the sewer in our noses."

And much more eloquent and burning sarcasm. In wild haste, the trustees sent for their attorney, W. H. Anderson, Esq., and begged him to find that the Teuton was unconstitutional or something; anyhow to turn him off.

It was certainly a legal poser. The law forbids electioneering within a hundred feet of the polling place; although the megaphone was beyond the hundred-foot line, it presented peculiar complications. Does "electioneering" refer to your feet or the sound of your voice?

Fearing the validity of their own war measure, however, the ladies turned off Germany.

CRY FOR FOOD AND DRINK.
 As the morning advanced, one of the election officials became hungry and called aloud for food. When an election official gets hungry in plain sight, it presents an embarrassment. With hunger goes thirst. You quench the thirst on alcoholic beverages; behold you have offended the W.C.T.U. If you give him water, you not only offend the other element, but you compel the gentleman to secretly send forth a nickel in a can.

Observe the diplomacy of the feminine Venice politicians. They quivered his threat and the poll place, the most violent and rabid "long hair" could not stir up a moral storm over a dill pickle. One of the most moral and conservative objects known is a dill pickle.

Nearly all day a large crowd stuck around the voting tent and trod on the toes of the other crowd.

A constant succession of automobiles scurried busily around on important errands that no one could ever fathom. They always seemed to be filled with important young men with streaming badges, who asked one another how "it" was going, and invariably heard that "it" "looked good," and then dashed on until they met other young men in similar autos and asked the question over again.

Abbot Kinney was not to be seen among the other crowd, but his enemies went about among the gathering and circulated fearful stories about him, the worst being that he is secretly a poet and wrote a thing in cantos in a Santa Monica paper. This is a pretty bad thing to say about any man. If it had only been a plain poem without cantos—

Dana Burks was in evidence among the crowd, and G. M. Jones, the mil-

The Republicans of the Fourth Ward are the first to start a Roosevelt-Taft Club in Los Angeles, and are taking much interest in it. A preliminary meeting was held last evening. Frank W. ## SIX MONTHS SLEEPLESS.

Miner Made Insane by Affliction Which Follows Terrible Experience on the Desert.

Driven insane because he was unable to sleep, Frank L. Inkerson, a Goldfield miner, was placed in the County Hospital yesterday. His affliction seized him about six months ago, after a trip across the Nevada desert, where he almost died of thirst.

Several days ago Inkerson started for Los Angeles for treatment. On the way he became insane and was taken in custody by the county officials. It is believed by the hospital physicians that he will recover. Inkerson's is the most peculiar case of insanity ever known at the County Hospital.

Only once or twice has he been violent. He lies on his cot with his eyes wide open and seems conscious of everything that goes on about him. He is restless and even in his dark-

HEART SIEGE HIS UNDOING.

Too Persistent, Lover Pines in Jail Cell.

Charged With Mailing Notes of Improper Nature.

Girl's Parents Freed From Fear of Tragedy.

Bestowed with offers of marriage for two years by Edward C. Bitting, an electrical contractor of this city, and annoyed by his calls and by the receipt of alleged threatening and improper letters, Miss Myrtle Rainey, a handsome young woman of Boyle Heights, was instrumental in securing his arrest yesterday. He is now in the County Jail, awaiting trial in the Federal Court on a charge of using the mails illegally. The arrest prevented a possible tragedy, Mr. and Mrs. George W. handsome young woman of Boyle Heights who caused arrest of suitor whose letters are declared threatening and improper.

ened room complaints of the light and for sleep. Inkerson had been in Nevada for more than a year, prospecting and freighting. While on a prospecting trip he became lost and wandered about for hours without food or water. In a crisis of condition he was rescued and taken to Goldfield. He was treated there, but did not fully recover. Later he suffered from a nervous collapse. In the night he was rescued and was unable to control himself.

Inkerson has mining claims in Nevada, which are said to be rich in ore, and a freighting outfit. He is married.

STRIKE CALLED TODAY.

Union Bosses Order Out the Bookbinders, but Those in Los Angeles May Continue Working.

A general strike of bookbinders has been called all over the country, beginning today. It is yet uncertain whether the local bookbinders will strike. The union employs in this city are satisfied with their pay, but asked for an eight-hour day. A compromise was offered by the employers of an eight-and-a-half-hour day. This overture has been well received by the local employees. If the strike is insisted upon from the boss, at union-labor headquarters in the East, the local bookbinders will probably be forced to walk out, or else lose their standing in the union. The employers are making a stand for the open shop, and a good many of the men are inclined the same way.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL, HE CLAIMS.
 In the case of John Wilson, a contractor, charged with maintaining a grading camp on Sunset boulevard, the defendant's attorneys will today contest the right of property owners to grant or deny the business privileges of the neighborhoods in which they hold land.

In the case of a permit for a grading camp, saloon or poolroom, the City Council refers the matter first to a committee, and later to the property owners of the neighborhood in which the business is to be carried on. If the property owners refuse their consent, the permit is denied.

Attorneys for Wilson claim that this is giving legislative powers properly vested in the City Council to the people direct, and that it is unconstitutional.

DAILY STRAW VOTE.

A straw vote of the Citizens' National Bank building on a successor to President Roosevelt, gave the following result:

of distasteful attentions, believe. Bitting is half crazed by the use of stimulants or drugs, they say, and they have lived in fear that some terrible deed would result from the man's infatuation. "I have done everything in my power to put a stop to Mr. Bitting's attentions to my daughter," said Mrs. Rainey last evening at the family residence, No. 227 East Third street. "I have told the young man, we wanted nothing more to do with him. Myrtle refused to see him and he was not allowed entrance to the house. But he wrote very improper letters and sent them either by mail or by messenger. He is not in his right mind, I believe. When patience ceased to be a virtue, and we made complaint to the authorities, Bitting's madness led to his arrest. We supposed he was still in Santa Clara, from which city his last letter was mailed, until he telephoned me for permission to see my daughter. I forbade his coming to the house and notified the officers of his whereabouts. I do not wish him any harm, but I believe a short term in prison will teach him a lesson."

Miss Myrtle is a tall, stately girl about 25 years of age, who has been back from an intellectual forehead.

SHE CALLS HIM A COWARD.
 She admitted that Bitting was arrested at her request as well as at that of her mother. "He was a terrible annoyance," she said, "her eyes flashing. 'I am glad he is put where he cannot continue his insults. I am not afraid of him, for he is a coward. If he had a revolver, I would walk right up to him and wrest it from his grasp.'"

Bitting became acquainted with the Rainey family nearly two years ago. At first his attentions were welcome, but later the young woman found them disagreeable and told him so. But he continued to call at the flat in Boyle Heights, where the Raineys lived before moving into their present home.

One day, Miss Myrtle would receive a letter from her would-be sweetheart. On the next, the telephone bell would ring and Bitting would inquire fondly about his "little girl." "You are there would be a box of candy or a bouquet. Every few months there was a proposal of marriage."

"I told Myrtle that she was of age and could make her own choice," said Mrs. Rainey, sighing as she described the remorseless persistence of Bitting. "If my daughter really wanted the man, we would have said nothing. But she said she hated him and only wished to be left alone. Not long ago he called me up by telephone and wanted me to meet him to talk things over. I wrote him a curt note in which I told him if he had one spark of manhood left, he would cease his annoyances."

BITTING COMPLACENT.
 Bitting complacently asserted to one of the Federal officers that he had made a strong impression upon the Raineys. He admitted writing some very unusual missives and said that jealousy had driven him to say some bitter and cruel things about the girl he loved.

"She is angry just now," he said while being escorted to the County Jail, "but Myrtle is a good girl and will soon forgive her little Eddie. My

Methodists Ask Bishop's Home to Be Here.

Appointments Will Be Read at Noon Today.

Methodists resuscitate Macley School of Theology and elect Dr. E. A. Healy, dean. Request general conference to change home of Pacific Coast bishop to Los Angeles, and pledge themselves to furnish an official residence. Bishop Neely will read appointments before final adjournment at noon today.

The Macley School of Theology, as a department of the University of Southern California, was revived by the Southern California Methodist Conference yesterday, after a hiatus of six or seven years, and Dr. E. A. Healy was elected dean of the new department. As suggested in The Times some weeks ago, Bishop T. B. Neely has found use for all the diplomacy in his nature to weather the breakers in the conference, which will adjourn finally at noon today.

The complications that have arisen have resulted in extending the session one day beyond any session in recent years, and Bishop Neely drew a long breath yesterday when it was all over. The trouble arose, to put it in the bishop's own words as he spoke to the conference yesterday, because "there are too many first-class men who want first-class places and there is not enough of first-class places to go around."

The result was a deadlock over the placing of Dr. E. A. Healy, one of the old and able men of the conference, who has just closed his second year at University Church. Though Dr. Healy is a man of ripe experience and profound learning and by no means an old man, he some months ago announced to his congregation that he would make way for a younger man, and as a consequence, other leading churches looking for young men, were not willing to change their minds, while small churches with small salaries could not be tendered to a man of Dr. Healy's experience.

In fact this matter resulted in a myriad of well-laid schemes, for it is said that if no satisfactory conclusion could be arrived at, Bishop Neely would return to the University Church, but neither Dr. Healy nor the other fellows concerned in the scheduled change, cared to have this done. It was first proposed to elect the position of chaplain of the university, but after long consideration this was rejected, because there was no available fund to guarantee the position. Then Dr. Pitner got a happy hunch. Since the closing of the Macley school in the San Fernando Valley, the small income from the Macley school has been accumulating for the increase of the fund, and Dr. Pitner proposed the resuscitation of the school as a department of the university, and the election of Dr. Healy as dean, his salary to come part from this fund. A resolution was prepared for presentation to the conference to that effect, with the concurrence of the bishop and the four presiding elders.

Dr. Healy is chairman of the Committee on Education, and the resolution was placed in the hands of another. At the conclusion of the reading of the educational report by the chairman, when an effort was made to introduce the resolution, objection was made on the ground that there was not time to consider it, but Bishop Neely had something of his mind that only this debate and its result could effect, and he called for the reading of the resolution.

The first speaker on the question was F. G. H. Stevens, who opposed its adoption and favored a Bible chair in the university. He was followed by Dr. S. A. Thomas, presiding elder of the Pasadena district, who made a strong speech in favor of the resolution, declaring that if they were to do anything now is the time. He asserted that there was a fund of $75,000 available to support it, and this statement "smoked out" President Board of the university, who was opposed to the step because, he said, there was not sufficient funds in sight to warrant it. He said:

"I am not here to oppose this resolution, though my reason for being against it have not been removed." President Board explained that $22,000 of the Hazard fund belongs distinctly to the College of Liberal Arts, for the maintenance of a Bible chair, and that the Macley fund is less than $5,000, at present producing a net income of less than $400. In all there is about $45,000 available for the new position.

"This money of the Macley endowment," said Dr. Board, "has been regularly invested for the increase of the fund and not one dollar of it has been used for any other purpose." Dr. J. L. Pitner, presiding elder of the San Diego district, warmly and eloquently favored the new step, for which he stood sponsor. He declared: "You are getting men who are over-nursed, and we want men who can wrestle with other men and subdue them spiritually. The time has come, and we hope that should ever characterize a Methodist preacher, we will laugh at obstacles and go forward. This is the time; let us launch this battle with faith and courage and success shall be ours."

Dr. A. W. Adkinson, presiding elder of the Los Angeles district, declared: "I allow no man to go beyond me in my respect for the judgment of our honored president of the university. We gave him free scope and the institution has gone forward with leaps and bounds."

He continued to argue that now is the time to take the step and felt assured that the conference could easily guarantee the salary of a dean. Dr. H. W. Peck, presiding elder of the Fresno district, contended that the university should have the school, and that to do it is "level best" for both the university and the school of theology. Short speeches to the same effect were made by P. P. Carroll, Alexander Hinkle, T. C. Knoles and others, when the vote was almost unanimously in favor of the resolution. Great applause followed the vote, and one minister said: "That unlocks the cabinet." A meeting of the board of trustees of the university was immediately called. Dr. E. A. Healy was elected dean of the School of Theology, and Bishop Neely will confirm him today. Before adjournment Bishop Neely made his remark about the plethora of first-class men and the dearth of first-class places and announced that the appointments would be read before noon today.

BISHOP'S RESIDENCE, TOO. The conference, yesterday, supplemented its endorsement of Dr. Robert McIntyre for the episcopacy, by adopting a request to the General Conference to change the home of the Pacific Coast bishop to Los Angeles, and pledging itself to furnish an episcopal residence.

The General Conference delegation met yesterday and organized by electing Dr. Robert McIntyre as chairman, and Mrs. I. J. Reynolds, who received the largest number of votes in the lay college, as secretary.

UNIVERSITY PROSPEROUS. The report of the Committee on Education, showed a fine condition of the university, with an enrollment that will reach between 1200 and 1500 during the year. The chairman nominated the following trustees for three years: W. W. Beckett, A. J. Wallace, G. F. Boyard, A. W. Adkinson, B. C. Cory, W. M. Bowen, H. W. Brodbeck, President Board, Robert S. Fisher, John Oliver, and others made speeches on the report.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING. The Sunday-school anniversary was celebrated in the afternoon, Dr. H. W. Brodbeck presiding.

Bishop Neely made a short address, in which he declared that "a Sunday-school is a sort of professor in theology—an evangelist of the best kind." He commended the Methodist literature, which had been slightly spoken of in an instance or two, and said there was no excuse for a teacher going to his class unprepared.

Hugh C. Gibson, general secretary of the State Sunday-school Association, spoke of the Sunday-school as the greatest evangelistic force in the world, and conducted a round-table in which he drew out questions from the audience and made some clean-cut responses from the platform.

A business session of the conference will be held this morning at 9 o'clock and after clearing of the table of all routine business the appointments will be read the last thing before final adjournment at noon.

Last night Bishop Neely spoke to a very large audience on the subject of South America.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.
OIL PRICES ADVANCING.

KERN RIVER REPORTS HIGHER OFFER ON CONTRACT.

Bakersfield Operators Predict That Oil Will Go to a Dollar a Barrel. Southern Pacific Pipe Line Making Good Progress—Eleven Pumping Stations on Line.

According to rumors current among Bakersfield oil men a well-known independent company of the Kern River fields has been offered $5 cents a barrel for a five-year contract by the Standard Oil Company. Neither a confirmation nor a denial of the report could be gained today, but it is said that the offer has been taken under advisement by the company, and that a contract on these terms may be signed within a few days.

According to reports of oil men, the price would be by no means unexpected, and it is considered that the contract, for five years at $5 cents, would be rather less advantageous to the producer than at one year for 25 cents. H. Hill, of Bakersfield, who expects dollar oil within the next six months.

Meanwhile there is much gossip at Bakersfield over the gradual price of from 25 to 45 cents, given in Blodgett's contract with the Salt Lake, as the selling price for the five-year contract. The charge has been openly made, says the Californian, that the price given in the recorded contract is not the true one, but that in reality was a much higher figure. It is said that offers, apparently more advantageous than the one accepted, according to contract figures, had previously been rejected, and it is hinted that the real contract price is 10 cents higher each year than that shown.

Hundred Miles of Pipe.

With 100 miles of rifled pipe already on the ground and distributed, the Kern River men are also at the two construction camps already established, good progress is being made on the Southern Pacific-Associated pipe line from Delano to tidewater. At the Bakersfield end of the line everything has a brisk air of business, and considering the short time which has been spent on the work, much has been done.

Two construction camps are now in operation. The first, at Delano, employs over eighty men, and they have already connected and laid over four miles of the eight-inch rifled pipe, with a burlap, painted with a special asphaltum preparation, to prevent the pipe from injury.

The plans of the engineers in charge of the work provide for eleven pumping stations along the route, not counting the final shipping point at Point Richmond, known as Nevada Dock. The first is Valinch, at the Kern River oil fields, the old pumping station of the Southern Pacific for the pipe line to Delano. The second is twenty-four miles to the west and north, and is known as Hunt. The next is Tip-ton, and the others, in their order, are Goshen Junction, Fowler, Floyd, Mendota, Leathra, Dinora, Emerald, Tracy, Neroby, and the last, Nevada. The distance between all points is approximately twenty-four miles, bringing the total length of the line to 250 miles.

These pumping plants will all be uniform with the one which will soon be installed at the Kern River fields, now being manufactured in San Francisco. They will more than double the present capacity of the Delano line.

Will Drill Deep. Within a week the drills will be started for a 3000-foot oil well at Petaluma. Over $40,000 has been made available for the purpose. The bonding of the A. Ducker ranch has been made for oil-drilling purposes. The company in charge is confident the yield will be a big thing for Petaluma. At the big well which is being bored on the Juarez tract oil and in East Napa on which the Napa baseball grounds are located, excellent deposits of oil and gas were struck on Thursday evening. The well is now about 250 feet deep, the first indications of the two materials being struck at a depth of some 225 feet. The oil located is of a fine, clear, clean paraffine quality.

Japanese Boy Dies With Pleasure. Carries to Grave Some 'Dir' Secret.

Isoki Yamato, 19 years old, died last night at the Santa Fe Hospital. He had suffered many weeks but never complained.

The young Japanese waited for death with a wondering look on his face. He was not afraid. Last night when an attendant approached his cot, Yamato fixed his eyes on the man and feeling his own feeble pulse, smilingly said: "Pretty soon no more."

Then he dropped back on the pillow, there was a convulsive shudder and the end had come. About three months ago the boy was taken to the hospital suffering from typhoid fever, which he had contracted while working as a section hand for the Santa Fe. He thanked the nurses and physicians often for their care of him but he did not want to live, for some reason which he refused to give. He did not care to eat and when told that he must, only shook his head and smiled.

Local Men to Appear Before Grand Jury in San Francisco in Connection With Kidnaping Case.

Constables Ben Cohn and Frank Cochran, left for San Francisco last evening and will appear before the grand jury, which will be continued with the alleged kidnaping of Fremont Older last Friday.

The summonses were served by Detective Hess of Secret Service Agent Burns's staff, who remained with the constables until they were aboard the train. The preliminary examination of Older on the libel charge preferred by Eddy L. Brown will be continued some date after the conclusion of the trial of T. R. Ford in San Francisco, at the request of Francis J. Heney.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Epes Randolph of Tucson, Ariz., yesterday joined her husband, who has been spending the last few weeks at the Van Nuys.

Mrs. Thomas Kearns, daughter and maid of Salt Lake joined former Senator Kearns yesterday at the Alexandria. They will remain in Los Angeles several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Hammond of Coronado are making the Westmaster their headquarters during a short stay in Los Angeles. Mr. Hammond is the manager of Coronado Tent City during the summer months.

Benjamin Taft, a clubman of Boston, and O. T. Farnham, a retired capitalist of Providence, R. I., are guests at the Angelus. Mr. Taft is no relation to the Secretary of War, but is almost as large in stature.

Dr. M. R. Balenzuela of Cananea, Mex., is a guest at the Hollenbeck. He says that the reports of wholesale closing of the smelters and other works at Cananea copper mines, lately sent out, are exaggerated.

Mrs. George E. Wagner, Miss C. F. Wagner, and Miss L. E. Wagner of Germantown, Pa., accompanied by Mrs. W. T. Beane of Denver have reserved apartments at the Angelus and will remain in this vicinity for the winter months.

T. O. Farrar, a wealthy New York man, arrived at the Hollenbeck, early yesterday, coming in his private car "Pronto," over the Santa Fe. He was accompanied by Mrs. Farrar, Miss Farrar, Miss L. E. Farrar, and Mr. Farrar. The party will remain in Los Angeles several days, and will then go north as far as Seattle. They plan to return to Los Angeles about December 1.

Beautiful Autumn Garments
Women's autumn suits, coats and costumes are shown in a profusion of charming styles, many of which are confined exclusively to this store for California. It is unquestionably the most exemplary collection of highly artistic garments to be seen in this section. Prominent in the display are tailored mannish suits and beautiful gowns of silk and chiffon for reception and evening wear.

Beautiful Autumn Millinery
In this presentation of beautiful autumn millinery is definitely expressed the trend of correct fall fashions. Scores of distinct creations mirroring the smartest dictates of New York and Paris—masterpieces of renowned artists—exclusive foreign conceptions augmented by our own—original designs and individual adaptations—add the charm of diversity to a showing that is conspicuous for beauty and refinement. Included in the display of exclusive Parisian creations are hats from the following Paris artists:
Maison Pouyanne
Esther Meyer
Maison Virot
Mme.orgette
Caroline Reboux
Suzanne Blum
Loys Soeurs.

Beautiful Autumn Fabrics
Examples of every favorite autumn fabric meet here in a collection of richest materials that looms of two continents produce. The entire range of weave and texture is represented, varying from sheer, diaphanous fabrics to tailor cloths and coatings. New and delightful colorings are Biere, Matelot, Puce, Wine, Petunia, Dahlia, Burgundy, Chasseur, Eveque, Crocus, Vatican, etc. Exclusive dress patterns—one of a kind—are a feature.

PLAYERS AND PLAYHOUSES.

Paul Hervieu's "The Awakening," new English adaptation in which Olga Nethersole chose to inaugurate her week at the Mason, is an absolutely "new" play. The most theatrical role, in fact, falls neither to the masculine nor feminine lead, but to a secondary character. Neither does the star hold the last situation, she has already gone from the stage, and the curtain falls upon the closing phrases of two men.

Hervieu has managed to handle a time-worn subject in a thoroughly artistic and delightfully clean manner. The love of an ardent young man for a married woman is a subject upon which all wrote play-makers long to dwell, and it has been especially done, in a handsome way, by the purveyors to the French theatre.

The theme of this play is no more nor less than that. Prince Gregoire, of the ruling dynasty in the little kingdom of Sylvania, is in Paris, temporarily barred from his throne, but still enthroned in the hearts of his countrymen. Prince Jean, his son, is his idol and the people's, and it is upon this youth that Gregoire resolves to bestow his principality. When he makes his declaration of abdication to Prince Jean, the latter fully refuses his father's offer of a distant throne, and answers which is to encourage with Therese de Mege, wife of Raoul de Mege, a warmer attraction than the throne but still light which beats around his far-off ancestral seat. Enraged, Prince Gregoire tries every means of persuasion, and finally, with an agent, seizes his son and places of seduction with Therese, and leads her to fear that he has been slain—covertly hoping, as his son ever believes, that the woman may, in a frenzy of grief, commit suicide. But she does not—in fact, Prince Gregoire has sent a serving woman to follow her and frustrate any such intention—and at last ends her way back to her own house. The solicitude of her husband brings a touch of tenderness to her heart, and her young daughter, in a burst of pathetic and trusting confidence, melts her completely.

In this brief but perfectly constructed scene, Hervieu has written more motherly tenderness, more daughterly aspiration, more impressionistic, sacred family affection, than any French writer of recent years. This is a new touch in the Parisian play; it is the light of this whole piece. For once the French writer has demonstrated with sublime effect the reality of a love that is not lust, the purifying touch of desire that is not carnal, the holiness and sanctity of motherhood. It is "The Awakening."

Immediately thereafter Prince Jean returns to Therese's house. There is a brief but quiet scene, and Therese, calling her carriage, leaves, after bidding Jean a friendly farewell. His father returns; there is a moment of impassioned outburst upon the son's part, but shortly after the play ends with Prince Gregoire's humble salute to "Our King."

The melodramatic role of the play is that of the aged Gregoire, George Langston, who impersonates the old Prince here, is admirable in appearance, clear in diction, but too violent in both tone and physical expression. It must not be understood that he spells the part; his physical is not broad enough for that; he merely mays it, and perhaps only slightly at that. His second scene is excellent.

Prince Jean, his son, falls to Frank Mills, who played a number of strong character roles here last season. Mills has lost none of his adaptability to character-in-lead, but he has gained wonderfully in clearness. Last year only the most attentive ear could catch the better part of his sentences. Now he is heard with distinctness through the house.

And passing through these two parts—really they are the largest of the drama—one comes to Miss Nethersole herself, as Therese. Each year Miss Nethersole grows quieter and more subtle; less given to large expressions of passion, and more reliant upon the small details that go to perfect stage art. In the second act, where she believes her would-be lover trapped and killed, she falls in abandonment of frantic grief, shrieking anathema upon her persecutors, flailing the locked door with her bare hands at last covering and veritably whimpering in the ebb of woe—here a delegation presuming from Watts or environs, though in dress clothes, among the rest of the audience with sniggers and covert teases. Otherwhere the actress's voice is low, her movements quiet, her gestures few—but how strikingly forceful and original! She has a wonderful way of doing things effectively that are the horror of the ordinary stage-director, for instance, an extended scene on stage, back to the audience, and only a faint voice audible. Her love-making has none of the professional ardency of the average actress; she is real; the man must come to her; there is evident that almost imperceptible shrinking that fearfulness, which is the essence of womanhood. I only saw one false bit of business. This was at a moment, when, hotly pursued by the arduous Prince Jean, Therese leans against the mantel, directly over the grate supposed to contain a bed of glowing coals.

As ever, Miss Nethersole in dress is distinctively magnificent, but the singular expressiveness of her strong, powerfully unpretty face is as remarkable as her art.

As the Comtesse de Mege, mother of Raoul, Miss Katherine Stewart conveyed a fine impression by clever and intelligent impersonation.

The remainder of the cast was of ordinary caliber.

The properties were correct and complete, as were the costumes. The scenery was poor and worn.

Tonight "Sapho" will be revived.

The hold-overs at the Orpheum this week are apparently more numerous than usual—though why some of them were held over at all is something of a mystery to the man of average intelligence, for they are deadly dull and hopelessly flat.

However, Houdini does not come under the ban, for this wonderful man of tense muscles and wriggling ingenuity kept his audience spellbound for many minutes while he made his escape from a lunatic's strait-jacket, by which he had been strapped to an iron bed. Tonight he will get out of a dry-goods box nailed and corded by trusted shipping clerks of Hamburg.

Among the new numbers on the bill are the Christie Duo, Anglo-Russian dancers, in which the male member of the duo shows remarkable flexibility of limb and gives us some samples of coarse London concert-hall humor. The Russian dancing by his female assistant is somewhat more pleasing.

Inez Macaulay and Clarence Oliver rush through a particularly insane play by Edmund Day, "The Unexpected," with a vehemence that leaves the audience dizzy and unlightened. Paul Barnes, monologist, comes forward with a laughable dissertation on umbrellas, and sings some very clever and diverting topical songs.

Joseph Hart's crickets are good to look at, for they have shapely limbs and illuminated bodies, and they also chirp with creditable zeal and enthusiasm. They are assisted by Katherine Dunn and W. N. Crisp, soprano and tenor respectively, in some time-honored songs—"The Cricket and the Moon," "Moon River" and "Heroes of the U.S.A." The settings of "The Wistaria Grove" and "The Battleship Maine" are very handsome, and the EXCITING CHASE ON TRAIN.

Negro Pursued by Officer Over Tops of Box Cars and Finally Mailed by Revolver Bullet.

After a hard chase over rapidly-moving freight cars, a patrolman yesterday captured Heck Brown, a young negro, charged with being a member of a gang of robbers. That both men were not killed in remarkable.

The officer came upon Brown at First street and Central avenue. The fellow submitted quietly to arrest and was taken to the patrol box at Alameda and First streets. Suddenly he jerked himself free from the officer's grasp and ran. The policeman pursued.

As the negro was about to cross Alameda street, an engine hauling a long string of flat and box cars came along. He turned and started in an easterly direction. When the patrolman fired at him he dashed for one of the flat cars, climbed upon it and then leaped to the street on the other side.

The policeman, holding his revolver in his hand, followed his man. Agile as a cat, Brown climbed to the top of a box car and after him went the patrolman. Several times they jumped from the tops of box cars to the flat cars below.

Finally Brown leaped from the train. The officer jumped also, but stumbled and fell. His clothing was torn and he was scratched and cut. But he never relaxed his grip on his revolver and a second shot perilously near Brown's head caused the negro to stop and submit to arrest.

Brown said the police to have participated in the robbery of two white men Saturday night. A woman, thought to be connected with the gang, is now in jail.

BICYCLES ON WALKS.

Under certain restrictions, sidewalks in country districts may be used by bicycle riders. Tropic asked several years ago that wheels be barred from the walks, now residents of the same place request the Supervisors to lift the restriction. Decrease in the number of bicycles in use, and the lessening of danger on that score, was urged in support of the appeal. After lengthy discussion the Supervisors agreed to modify the ordinance so that bicycles may be ridden on sidewalks in places under county jurisdiction, between 6 and 8 o'clock in the morning and between 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Other Departments Included
In the
25% Discount Sale

For the balance of this week, all Embroideries, all Dress Trimmings, all Leather Goods, fancy bags and belts will be subject to a straight 25 per cent discount from our regular prices.

And, as advertised Sunday, 25 per cent reduction until Saturday night on anything in any of these sixteen departments:

Dress Goods, Fancy Ribbons, Silks, Waists, Velvets, Robes, Embroidered Waists, Women's Neckwear, Veilings, Chiffons, Nets, Fans, Laces, Linings, Cut Glass, Curtains, Draperies.

The reason for such seemingly reckless price-cutting comes through our inability to get display space for the enormous stocks bought in anticipation of having our Hill Street extension completed a month ago. All the Fall stocks are here—twice as much merchandise as we can display in our present quarters—and not even one floor of the new building will be ready for occupancy until next week.

While the workmen are today joining the 2nd and 3rd floors of the old store with the new, thus assuring us of sufficient space to open the Oriental and Toy departments about the 15th inst, it does not relieve us of the necessity of using drastic measures to force out the tremendous stocks of Fall Fabrics and garments now awaiting display space.

Goods sold during this sale, will not be taken back. No goods sold to dealers. No fabrics sold during this sale will be made up free of charge in our skirt department. Sale closes Saturday, Oct. 5th.

As an additional inducement to have you visit the store during this opening exhibit, this special Tuesday offer of particularly stylish silks:

Warp print and pompadour silks, suitable for evening gowns or waists; in a good assortment of patterns; regularly $1.50; on Tuesday only, 85c a yard.

The opening of their Silk Section, from October first to October fifth, nineteen hundred and seven.

Preferring to carry "patterns" rather than full pieces, the exhibit will consist largely of direct importations of exclusive novelty silks for dinner, wedding or street gowns, together with the finest domestic-made silks which the season has brought forth.

The opening attractions will be very extensive, with particular emphasis on Velvets, Plaids, Satin-Surfaced Silks, Staple, High-Grade Black Silks, both plain and fancy, and other of the leading Autumn silks in preferred shades and patterns.

A Broadway window will be devoted to the display of a number of the choicest importations.

Mail orders will receive prompt attention.

Your special notice is requested of our displays of elegant silks for evening, afternoon and dinner gowns:

Pompadour silks up to $6 a yard; brocades up to $5 a yard; messalines, 85c to $1.50; satins, 65c to $2.50; satin and plain crepes de chine, $1.00 and $1.50; marquise and silk voiles, $1.50 and $2.00 a yard.

New Fall Suits $25 and Thereabouts

The woman who does not care to pay over twenty-five dollars or thereabouts for her every-day fall tailored suit, will find the purchasing power of her money wonderfully strong here.

TIMBER BATHS TO PROFIT US.

Preservative Process Will Save Fortunes.

Experiments by Government Prove Successful.

Wonders Worked by Hot and Cold Oil Dips.

In Los Angeles and vicinity there are used annually from 60,000 to 70,000 poles, and in the next five years more poles will be needed in this locality than in any other section of the country. Not only Los Angeles but Southern California, as a whole, will profit greatly by the new preservative treatment of timber. The investigations of the government and of private corporations have resulted in the discovery of a process which will preserve wood almost indefinitely.

A few years ago, a preservative treatment for telegraph and other poles was unknown in the United States, but the constant increase in the cost of the higher grades of timber and the substitution, in many localities, of inferior woods for those formerly used, made a preservative treatment almost a necessity. The use of the so-called inferior woods is possible only by the use of a preservative treatment.

Owing to the difficulty of getting poles, the various pole-consuming companies in Los Angeles turned their attention, two years ago, to a preservative treatment. Among the various methods tried by these companies was the application of different oils with a brush to the outside of the pole, but the desired results were not obtained. Four years ago the Pacific Light and Power Company set a pole line from power-house at Montrose to San Bernardino. Two hundred and one of these poles were treated with a preservative treatment, and one hundred and fifty of these poles were treated with a preservative treatment. The poles being first wrapped with burlap and then dipped in the compound. Twenty-five were treated with asphaltum and cement, with no burlap wrapping. Recently, one hundred and thirty-eight of these poles were examined, the earth being removed from around the pole to a depth of from one to two feet.

RESULTS UNSATISFACTORY. Of the forty-three poles treated with carbolineum, twenty-seven were found to be rotted through the sapwood. Eighty-seven of the poles treated with asphaltum and cement, with the burlap wrapping, were seemingly all sound, as the compound and the burlap formed a hard shell on the outside of the pole. On twenty-five of these the burlap was cut and the wood underneath examined. Fourteen proved to be sound, and the rest were rotted through the sapwood. Of the twenty-five poles treated without the burlap wrapping, twenty-one were badly rotted.

Crude oil has been used to a considerable extent in Southern California as a preservative. The method employed is not to treat the wood itself, but to saturate the ground around the pole with oil and encase the pole in bitumen formed by the mixture of the oil and the earth. Poles so treated have not been set long enough to show results. Steel poles have been substituted to some extent for wooden poles on long transmission lines. On the new line of the Edison Electric Company, from the power-house at Montrose to San Bernardino, a tripod-shaped steel pole is used. The pole is built of three quarter round pieces of steel set in concrete, one of the pieces being tapered to a point at the top. The steel legs are lashed from base to top. A great deal of trouble has been caused by the leakage and induction on the steel towers, causing death to animals, fires, etc.

EXPERIMENTS WITH PINE.

In Fresno, the San Joaquin Light and Power Company has poles of the western yellow pine. Owing to the high price of poles in Fresno and to the difficulty of getting any cedar poles there, the company, about three years ago, began to use yellow pine. The poles are cut in the mountains north of Fresno and are hauled in by teams. A pine pole has an average life of two years. In setting the pole, the company has tried two methods to prolong its life: the use of creosote oil and the use of a cedar strip. The pole is strapped to a 1x10x16 inch cedar strip with two U bolts, the butt of the pole being kept a foot above the ground to prevent the fungus getting a hold on the pole.

These methods proved unsatisfactory, and two years ago several of the pole consumers in Southern California appealed to the forest service for help. The forest service began some experiments in February, 1926, which have been continuing ever since. The experiments only the open-tank method has been used. This consists in giving the pole a bath of hot oil, followed by a bath of cold oil. The pole is placed in a tank of hot creosote oil to a depth one foot above the ground line when set, and kept there for three to eight hours, depending on the condition of the wood and the penetration desired. The pole is then placed in a bath of cold oil. When the wood is heated in the hot oil, the air and moisture in the wood cells and intercellular spaces is expanded and some of it is driven out. On immersion in the cold oil, the difference in temperature causes the expanded air and moisture to contract, thus forming a partial vacuum which causes the oil to permeate the wood.

FIGURES TELL STORY.

The western yellow pine is found to be a wood which readily takes treatment. In the experiments carried on in Southern California a penetration of from two to five inches of oil all the ground line, and in the ground, had been obtained. This treatment increases the pine's life to at least twenty years.

Figuring the cost of the untreated pole at $5, and the life at two years, the annual charge of the pole, exclusive of interest, is $2.50. Figuring the cost of treatment at not more than $2.50 and a life of twenty years, the annual charge, exclusive of interest, is only 25¢ cents.

In the case of the cedar pole it has been found possible to fill the sapwood with creosote at a cost of about $2. A treatment of this kind should at least double its life. A forty-foot cedar pole, set in the ground, about $15 and has an average life of ten years. The annual charge on this pole, exclusive of interest, is $1.50. With an additional cost of $2 for treatment and a life of twenty years, the annual charge will be reduced to 50¢ cents.

The government considers the investigations in the preservative treatment
